

LUXURY REAL ESTATE SHOWS SIGNS OF RECOVERY

June 12, 2012 By: Frances Pondish

Luxury real estate seems to be looking up, at least as far as Chris Pollack, President of Chris Pollack, Ltd., is concerned. With projects in major global locations including New York, Los Angeles, The Hamptons, London and the Caribbean, Chris Pollack Ltd. is thriving in the high-end real estate market. The boutique advisory and management firm just completed its 50th project in 12 years, and maintains a positive outlook for the future.

Chris Pollack, Ltd. is a full-service firm, with a diverse clientele including high-end residential owners, hedge funds, exclusive resorts, and commercial office buildings. The firm is focused on guaranteeing clients the best bids, while ensuring a timely execution of the design and construction plan.

"We are beginning to see signs of a recovery in the ultra-high-end Real Estate market," said Pollack. "Now is a great time to be building or remodeling a luxury property. Not only are land values bottoming but real estate expertise across the development chain is eager to work and more negotiable than ever."

For more information on Chris Pollack, Ltd., visit www.chrispollack.com

<http://www.luxurytraveladvisor.com/community/luxury-real-estate-shows-signs-recovery-8170>